Lord Beaconsfield is expected to reach London Tuesday afternoon A great popular demonstration is expected at Charing Cross station on his arrival A limited number of tickets have been issued for admission to the railway platform but so large a crowd is anticipated that a line of police will be formed extending from the railway station to Downing street The only invitation Lord Beaconsfield has accepted in honor of his return is a dinner tendered by the Carlton club The town council of Dover will meet the earl on his arrival at that port and present an address of congratulation

MEXICO.

Very much the Usual thing

CITY OF MEXICO July 15 —Col Mackenzie's invasion of Mexican soil caused considerable excitement, people believing that Mackenzie acted upon wide construction of his orders and that the object was to raise a border war for annexation purposes The treasury is now said to be depleted Fears of coming disturbances create uneasiness and impair business Famine is reported in the states of Sonora and Sinaloa At Mazatlan there is no flour and people are emigrating

The Potter Sub-Committee.

NEW ORLEANS, July 15 —Isaac W Patton Chairman Democratic state committee in 1876 testified that he saw Anderson about October Anderson proposed if the Democrats would support Nash for congress that he would give them two members of the general assembly and 1 500 to 1 800 Democratic majority in East Feliciana parish Witness could not entertain the proposition but telegraphed for McLean in Feliciana He came down and talked with Anderson about his treatment of the people Anderson finally agreed to go back if they would cash his scrip

Actual State of the Silver Question.

[From the Chicago Times]

It is announced that the treasury will pay for silver bullion no more than the equivalent of the London price computed at the current rate of sterling exchange on the day of purchase, also, that it will pay for such bullion only in standard silver dollars It would look at first sight, as though the treasury might find it difficult to purchase silver bullion on these terms Why should a man who has silver bullion worth $100 in gold sell it to the treasury for 100 silver dollars which if converted into bars would be worth only $88 in gold? There is, just now a good reason Silver dollars are as good as gold dollars for payment of duties on imports There are not silver dollars enough as yet to pay duties and as some gold coin has to be used for that purpose silver dollars must be worth exactly as much as gold for that purpose though for no other Accordingly the bullion dealer does not at present hesitate to take silver dollars for his bullion as the equivalent of gold dollars But as soon as he gets them he turns around and deposits them in the treasury taking silver certificates in exchange He then sells them to the importer at a trifling discount, and still makes a small profit by the operation as the London price of silver is a shade above the New York price Then the importer passes the certificates back to the treasury instead of gold when he has duties to pay The certificates stay in the treasury until the secretary wants to buy more silver bullion when they run the same round over again from the treasury to the bullion dealer, from the bullion dealer to the importer and from the importer back into the treasury once more The silver coin will not stay out of the treasury at all and the certificates only long enough to run their little triangular course And that is the way the dollar of our fathers is crushing the gold bulls and lifting the load off from the back of industry and making times lively and prosperous

What the New National Party Expect to Accomplish

CINCINNATI July 10 —The Enquirer to morrow will publish [illegible] General Cary late greenback candidate for the presidency in which he predicts that the National party will elect from sixteen to twenty congressmen in the coming elections and hold the balance of power in congress that they will elect five congressmen in Michigan and the remainder in New York Pennsylvania Illinois Wisconsin Missouri Arkansas Iowa and Texas and hold sufficient power in the state legislatures to defeat Conkling Cameron and Howe He is sure also that the Nationals will elect the next president

They have discovered the body of a doctor among the subjects stolen from the graves and deposited in the vat of the Ann Arbor college Strange enough the doctor's relatives are just as mad as ordinary folks They don't show a bit of disposition to contribute the body of their kinsman to the development of science

ALEXANDER H STEPHENS

HIS [illegible] THE [illegible] TIME [illegible] [illegible] THE [illegible] LETTER [illegible] MON [illegible] STONE [illegible]

[Augusta [illegible] Telegram to N Y Herald]

Mr Alexander H Stephens addressed a crowd of [illegible] 00 people in Augusta this evening He said [illegible] that before the [illegible] certain charges [illegible] against him [illegible] in no spirit of unkindness He was [illegible] of [illegible] the [illegible] Democratic party [illegible] on the Potter investigation resolution The truth was that Mr Potter without any general conference with his party introduced a resolution during my absence impugning [illegible] Republican frauds Who doesn't know there were frauds But my opinion was that so rotten a [illegible] had better be buried than broken If the object of investigation was to guide future legislation by [illegible] this evidence why [illegible] the scope of the investigation to one side [illegible] Republicans retorted that we too, had stolen [illegible] I wanted them to search us The rights us should be bold as a lion I also thought we should incorporate the declaration that there was no object to unseat the president I wrote to Mr Potter urging these points It is said I am to be ruled out of the party because I made concessions to the Republicans and I was called a deserter and a betrayer of party principles I have however been amply vindicated for in less than three weeks after Potter passed his resolution when the voice of the people made itself heard I was gratified to see the triumph of truth in the passage of these modifications but mortified to see it done in the trail and under the lead of Republicans I tell you the house howled me down but I'm not to be howled down and I venture to say now that nine tenths of my constituents sanction my course I have no business in congress if I do not know your interests even better than you do yourselves The dangers of opening up the presidential question were great for had the real course of the projectors of the Potter resolution been adopted a war would have swept the country compared to which the recent civil war would have been as a breeze to a cyclone It would not have been organized or sectional warfare but the battles of the commune and the cut throats The same causes in different [illegible] ahead when the question was sprung by Potter The country was at peace and the south had gained the principles to which she longed We were receiving from Hayes more than Tilden could have given and I we wished to secure good government Am I to be ruled out of the Democracy then when I say I support Hayes? A wise administration of the constitution is of more importance than whether this man or that be in power and now I am charged with having insulted the Democratic party of this district No such intention was even in my mind As soon would I have insulted my mother whose image I love or my father whose memory I revere I meant no insult to any one save to a low class of thimble riggers and trick sters who I supposed had hardly sensibility enough to be insulted

I neither seek nor decline the nomination of your party convention I have never asked office When I am asked if I will submit my claims to a convention I answer "I have no claims here is my life If the people want to take it, Will I tender my name? Why my name is before the people! I am here for no strife or quarrel but if for my course in congress the Democratic district convention repudiate me I will appeal to the people—the true Democracy after all! I have nothing to take back what I said in my recent letter to the district I never eat my words I have never offended any true Democrat If tricksters try to kick me out of the house of my fathers they'll find out it can't be did, they'll be kicked out themselves I wish to preserve harmony and am willing to be conservative but as Washington said When bad men conspire good men must combine" I shall never be bound by caucus A representative government can't be carried on under any such principles I am willing to consult members of the party but the idea of bringing in a rope and lasso is French Jacobinism revived I belong to the old school of Jeffersonian Democracy which holds that principles men nor organizations make parties The principles are broad as the earth, and as high as the universe and embrace all races and colors they are as catholic as the Christian religion and are founded on liberty equality and right In the darkest hours of the republic I seem to have seen living images each moving in its own organism, yet mysteriously linked together each following with others as wheels within wheels and the movement as Ezekiel said was as the sound of mighty waters and their voice as the voice of the Almighty So the states have rights mysteriously working yet connected with a union so all that move together and the eastern world and the crowned heads of Europe would be amazed at the harmony of our nation I have ever had an abiding faith in Providence in this matter and believed that people must be bound by the union and that it would be preserved I was brought up in the schools of Jeffersonian principles and in that temple I shall die I have only to say then that if any of you are offended at my words let the dead past bury its dead let us live to perpetuate that great party which has built up our State and must eventually save the nation

In Heaven!

[From Frazer's Magazine]

It has often been noticed so often that the subject is trite how often a vein of comedy is found in the deepest tragedies of life This is exemplified in a remark of Goodwin to his dying wife [illegible] characteristic of that unsentimental [illegible] passed over In one of Mary Wollstonecraft's last hours when she was suffering acute [illegible] Mr Basil Montague ran to Dr Carlisle and returned before the physician with an anodyne which he administered himself raising her in bed to give it The medicine had an immediate effect and she turned to her husband who held her hand with a sigh of relief and said Oh Goodwin I am in heaven But even at that moment Goodwin declined to be entrapped into the admission that heaven existed and he calmly replied You mean my dear that your physical sensations are somewhat easier

Kearney and his California Work

[From the International Review

Aside from certain undeniable personal qualifications the secret of Kearney's success is as well ventilated as Punchinello's mystery and has been so since Marat since Jack Cade since Gracchus perhaps since the birth of society Assemble a rather hungry crowd denounce the rich, or any class of men who manage to avoid extreme hunger preach a new distribution of things and a fresh start for all paint glowingly the riotous scenes which are to inaugurate the new dispensation appeal to the savage of human nature promise blood arson pillage and the other exciting incidents of city sacking, and—you will not last very long but while you do you will own and possess bodies and souls your entranced hearers who will hang you [illegible]

A Convention of the People

[From the Chicago Journal]

It may be of interest to Democratic newspapers and others who speak of the Republican party as an office holders' machine, to be informed that at the Illinois Republican state convention at Springfield there was not one federal office holder in attendance as a delegate and not a dozen office holders of any description The nearly 400 delegates were non office holding farmers merchants —representatives of the real people of the state at large Let the Democrats make a note of this significant fact if they have the decency to do it

NOTES FROM YAKIMA

YAKIMA CITY [illegible]

Several weeks have elapsed since my last communication and at least three weeks have come and gone since the OREGONIAN has made its appearance in Yakima During that time we have had no mail at all Our mail route was changed [illegible] the last letting from Umatilla [illegible] we be[illegible] [illegible] unfortunately [illegible] Co who agreed to carry it for less than $1 000 per year which is [illegible] can afford to carry it for The consequence is as we predicted some [illegible] contractor is [illegible] and Yakima is without mail Owing to this failure our postmaster entered into a special contract with W H Atkins to carry the mails to The Dalles until such a time as the route is let to a regular contractor Mr Atkins has carried the mail between this place and Wallula and Umatilla for the past six years and he has never missed a trip and the people of Yakima are very anxious that he should get the permanent contract

Chief Moses still affirms that he favors peace and has no intention of creating any trouble The farmers are busy haying and some have commenced cutting grain The crops are looking splendid

Later.

YAKIMA CITY July 10

The mail carrier Frank Olney, has just arrived from Wallula and has created quite a stampede in this city by his alarming account of the Indian troubles he talks the native language fluently and reports having met a number of Umatilla Indians on this side of the river they told him that the Bannocks had requested them to join in the outbreak They at first refused but were threatened with their lives and the Umatillas finally promised they would join them providing they would allow them to go to the Columbia river after their women and children to which the Bannocks agreed but when the Umatillas had been gone a short time the Bannocks began to suspect that they intended to give them the slip and followed them to the Columbia and some of them crossed the river near Umatilla city and the two tribes had a skirmish about ten miles northwest of that place in which two Bannocks were killed and one captured None of the Umatillas were hurt they also reported that the troops had fired into some of their women and children and killed a number of them having mistaken them for hostiles Bannock spies are said to be on the Yakima reservation Mr Jack Morgan dairyman on the reservation was notified by friendly Indians yesterday afternoon to leave and he took his family and a four horse team and started for the Dalles about six o'clock yesterday evening These are the reports as we receive them but Indian reports are usually greatly exaggerated On Sunday night about [illegible]0 head of horses were stolen from this reservation by some of Chief Moses stragglers

KRIHO

From Another Correspondent

YAKIMA CITY W T July [illegible] 1878

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The Indians in Eastern Washington territory on reservations and those not on reservations as yet are peaceably disposed however there are great chances for outbreaks from various quarters and raids liable to be made on the slender settlements any day and at any hour In all parts (save Walla Walla) of Eastern Washington and in many parts of Eastern Oregon and Idaho the population is so sparse unorganized and so illy conditioned for war that should the savage man's passion for blood and scalps become aroused all this people would be in imminent danger and an easy prey to his savage rage

Chief Moses with his numerous tribes and many warriors (near 2 000) as brave reds as ever flourished the scalping knife are encamped about 30 hours travel from this place These Indians are as yet harmless though they manifest excitement and anxiety just in accordance with the victories and adverses of the savages now in the field of action in Oregon and Idaho Should the Indians now at war achieve several successes and some of the war spirits find their way into the camp of the northern warriors surely the war fever will be aroused in every wigwam and the destroying terror turned loose on all this thinly populated frontier wholly unable to cope with such a foe But a proper display of energy and forethoughtedness on the part of the authorities would in a short time force the disturbing Indians to quietude and tend to have a quieting effect with those not yet resolved on outbreak

From the New York World June [illegible]

Mrs Agnes D Jenks was born in Glasgow Scotland in 1849 Her maiden name was Murdoch She came to this country when quite young and settled with her parents near the town of Jefferson Parish of East Feliciana La in 1860 She remained there until the fall of 1875 when she went with her husband to New Orleans her present residence In 1870 she married Captain Thomas A Jenks who had been a volunteer officer in the United States navy

Mrs Jenks professes that none other than a political motive has controlled her conduct during and since the presidential election in 1876 When asked for some incident of her personal life, the fair political intriguante tossed her head back and in a rich smooth voice with a pretty accent replied Oh I don't know much about myself Brevity is the soul of wit you know and my personal history ought to be better for being brief She appears, of course more at ease in a parlor than in a committee room though in speaking of politics she shows the picturesque audacity that she exhibited so often to the committee In personal appearance Mrs Jenks without being beautiful is a handsome woman of the robust demi blonde type, of medium height large and regular features with a clear rich complexion dark blue eyes with a well shaped head covered with a luxuriant growth of hair neither light nor dark which is parted slightly on one side and done up in braid behind She is very graceful in her movements and when she becomes interested in conversation her face lights up instantly and her accent adds a charming edge to every word she utters She is a woman for whom nature has done everything and to whom education has contributed but little Although she speaks with an accent, she is not a fluent French scholar but speaks the French of the Creole a little

Political Praying.

[From the Springfield Republican]

Political praying is getting reduced to a science out west The presiding clergyman at the recent Ohio Republican convention indorsed Hayes in his prayer so roundly that Hayes men couldn't help cheering him and the minister at the Illinois Republican convention was [illegible] telling God that the Republicans of Illinois were about to engage in a good and righteous cause and asking the Divine blessing upon it that the hall rang with applause as the reverend gentleman brought his prayer to an end and the temporary chairman in his opening remarks took the same ground that Mr Noure had taken in his prayer

The Presbyterian board of foreign missions issues an appeal to the church stating that there is a debt of $47 000 which, with the estimates of the missionaries makes the whole sum required $353 000 This amount the board has cut down to $4[illegible]000 which involves a serious restriction of the work, which ought rather to be enlarged The board asks the churches to increase their contributions so that the salaries at least of the missionaries may remain undiminished

From the San Francisco Chronicle July 11

The American ship Western Shore Captain Hotchkiss bound from Seattle to this port went ashore on Duxbury Reef at 11 40 o clock Tuesday night and will become a total wreck The disaster is difficult to account for as at the time the ship struck both the Farallone and Point Reyes lights were plainly visible and although there was a stiff breeze blowing the weather was not unfavorable At the time of the disaster the ship with all sails spread was speeding before a good strong wind at the rate of twelve knots an hour The captain and crew left the vessel without saving anything on the morning of the 10th, and were picked up in three boats by the tug Mer[illegible] off the Heads and brought to this city The vessel was owned by A M Simpson & Bro, of this city and was insured for only a one fourth interest She was built at Coos Bay three years ago and cost $80 000 She made two voyages from this coast to Europe—one from Portland to Cork in 101 days and one from San Francisco to Liverpool in 103 days and a return voyage in 110 days With a full cargo she drew about twenty four feet Her cargo was consigned to Morris & Co of this city and was valued at $12 000

Captain Hotchkiss states that Point Reyes light was visible when the ship passed but he could not see North Head light, it being quite foggy at the time He reported that the only place above water when he left the wreck was the starboard look and that nothing could be saved but the rigging and sails It appears from his statement that on account of the fog drifts or clouds the lights were frequently obscured during the night The place where she went down is in full view of the position where the captain was killed last winter at the time the ship so narrowly escaped the fate that befell the King Philip The Western Shore had two or three other hairbreadth escapes and by sailors was not regarded as a lucky ship The vessel was one of the best sailing to and from this port having enormous carrying capacity and great speed The owners, Capt McKellom and two other gentlemen held a conference with the underwriters yesterday It was decided to sell the ship at 1 o'clock to day R W Simpson's interest is insured for $25 000 in foreign insurance companies His brother had no insurance It is the theory of the owners that Captain Hotchkiss was over confident and neglected to consult his charts and take bearings from Point Reyes light

How George Swore at Monmouth.

[From the Philadelphia Times]

On this anniversary of the battle of Monmouth it is worth while to recall one of the authorities, though a very questionable one for the tradition that Washington swore at Lee in the way the occasion demanded It is told by George Washington Parke Custis in his Recollections Gen Charles Scott of Virginia, was a very profane man, and a friend after the war anxious to correct his bad habit asked him if "the admired Washington ever swore Yes once, answered Scott after a moment's reflection "it was at Monmouth and on a day that would have made any man swear Yes sir, he swore on that day till the leaves shook on the trees, charmingly, delightfully Never have I enjoyed such swearing before Sir, on that ever memorable day he swore like an angel from heaven" It would be hard to convict George upon such romantic testimony as this, but so precious a tradition could not be abandoned even if it were supported by no testimony at all

The following letter was received by courier at midnight from Pendleton July 14 to Gov Chadwick [illegible] arrived all right Will not issue them here unless forced to do so to protect ourselves but hold them to ship to La Grande the first opportunity

The troops under Capt Miles drove the Indians into the [illegible] near Cayuse station They fought four or five hours at long range in the valley Finally the troops and volunteers made a charge and drove them four miles to the hills and captured several horses in the field Our volunteers did splendidly and the officer in command complimented them highly Quite a number of Indians were killed but just the number could not be learned Nothing is doing to day but scouting Indians had not moved late in the day and they are watched very close To night Col Barnard's cavalry arrived on the Umatilla river near the other command and will move on the Indians it is supposed early in the morning Col Sanford is coming up from the La Grande way and is supposed to be near the Indians on the Meacham road and should the attack be made on all sides it will be warm times for the red devils to morrow

I think we will send out about fifty volunteers from here early in the morning Major Throckmorton is here and his presence has a tendency to quiet our people very much Mr Bunker is in, wounded in two places but not fatally George Coggan's body was recovered badly mutilated and in such condition that it had to be buried here Nothing was found on his person but a few papers His clothes were taken off, laid on his breast and burned One finger upon which he had a ring was cut off Olney McCoy's horse which he worked under the saddle was captured in the fight and is now in possession of his father The stage company lost six horses from Cayuse station The hostiles were chased so close that they had to leave them

Advise Capt Sperry how to procure horses for his company Will learn fully to morrow what is most needed for the destitute All the wounded are doing well (Signed)

The Oak Grove Canard

[From The Dalles Inland Empire]

Twenty five strapping, stalwart young fellows under command of Capt N B Humphrey of Albany arrived here last Wednesday evening about 8 o'clock having marched across the Cascade mountains The passenger train having left for Celilo before their arrival, they went out on the freight train at 9 o'clock and took their departure for Celilo at an early hour on Thursday morning They came by Oak Grove and pronounce the whole story of the raid upon the place a hoax from beginning to end It was started by a drover who had 1[illegible]0 head of cattle to sell at Portland and who wanted to raise the price of beef by circulating the story that all the cattle in Tygh valley had been driven off by the Indians We can imagine no more despicable action

FRANCE AND SILVER

As the United States has invited the principal nations to a conference on silver money it is interesting to note how our overtures are received The Latin union is a combination of states which because of their attitude on the subject of silver have been especially invited to our conference But our silver craze is not supported or encouraged even by the Latin union France is the leading member of that Union, and Victor Bonnet, an acknowledged authority of that country presents in the Revue des Deux Mondes the views that appear to prevail among those who direct the financial policy of France In introducing the subject he calls attention to what has been attempted on the silver question by the United States, saying "This great people has always kept in reserve a surprise for us For surely we found it at the head of all innovations, even the most rash if there was anything bold to attempt in the way of progress we were sure it had been tried by the Americans. But now, by a somewhat bizarre evolution, they are going back to the most superannuated practices" A clear summary of our silver legislation is then presented and a clever comparison is made between Senator Jones' silver report and the arguments of the great financial charlatan George Law, whom France has reason to remember As proof that there is nothing new under the sun it is a matter of curiosity to note the identity of Jones' arguments with those put forth by this adventurer in France, above a hundred and fifty years ago. Our financiers of the Jones-Bland stamp have no new light. They are stumbling along on a road which has often been traveled before their time, but has invariably led their predecessors to the fate which engulfs all who follow these extraordinary delusions The writer says the Latin union, if it considers its true interests, will not take part in the conference, because nothing useful can result from it. At the moment, he asks, "when all the European nations tend toward the gold standard as a necessary progress, when Holland, Austria and Spain join England, Germany and the Scandinavian states, when finally what is called the Latin union itself without having repudiated the double standard in name, has nevertheless repudiated in fact, since for two years past no silver is coined in the most important of these states, namely France, shall we at this time convoke Europe to ask it to go backward, to turn away from progress for the greater satisfaction of the Americans?" And further "We have several times demonstrated that silver is no longer the instrument of circulation suited to countries rich and advanced in civilization that it is too cumbersome, too heavy difficult to handle, and that we need to day an instrument of greater value and smaller bulk In this point of view the superiority of gold is incontestable, and nothing can change it, unless we suppose that civilization will retrograde."

This argument from an eminent authority in the very country which is spoken of by our silver advocates as affording proof of the successful operation of the double standard, might well open the eyes of all except those who refuse to see. But the writer proceeds. He compares the use of silver to the re establishment of the stage coach as a means of conveyance, and explains the futile efforts of the bank of France to force silver into circulation, of which the efforts of our treasury department to force the circulation of the silver dollar are but a futile repetition He adds "The United States have indeed decided in principle that they will have a double standard, gold and silver, but in fact they will have only one, and that one which will have the least value, silver. The Americans invite us to an international conference they wish to make us share the embarrassments they have imprudently got into It a little resembles the fable of the fox who lost his tail and invited his comrades to free themselves of a 'useless weight.'"

It is observed by this acute writer that even in the United States demonetization of silver, though not admitted in name, is accomplished and maintained in fact Only gold and paper circulate as instruments of exchange. Silver will not, because the dollar is of inferior value for everything except payment of duties It is predicted that if the conference meets it will be of very short duration. The time is very badly chosen, the writer says, "to persuade France to use silver again, as formerly Every attempt in this direction would be vain The government, without declaring the principle of the gold standard, has steadily guarded against the greatest dangers by forbidding the coinage of silver, and to day is in excellent condition for adopting the gold standard

The article closes with a reminder to Americans that though they are making a gain now in paying their interest in silver dollars they will lose it after a while in receiving the same money back for taxes When they find," says the writer, "that the end they aim at is chimerical and contrary to the tendency of Europe, they will take counsel and will probably find out a new monetary evolution in a more rational sense That is what we wish for them in their own interest And as for us, if there is not to be an international congress to seek to realize the monetary unity on the basis of a gold standard, let us at least remain where we are and continue to forbid the coinage of silver'

WORK OR DIE

At the beginning of our dealings with the Indians we adopted a theory of their political status to which government adheres without inquiry as to whether it ever was a correct theory or not, or whether supposing it once to have been correct, circumstances may not have rendered it now inapplicable and obsolete. Each tribe or squad has been treated as if capable of acting for itself in the capacity of a nation whereas all history shows no record of a tribe, within our republic able to assume and continue the character and relations of a sovereign people. In a recent report the commissioner of Indian affairs rightly said that though there may have been a reason in the weakness of the early colonies and in the far superior numbers of their Indian foes, for recognizing the condition of Indian sovereignty that has long since passed away and there is no longer any occasion for recognizing the tribes who remain with us as foreigners It gives them a dignity and importance and confers on them an independence of rightful and salutary control to which they are not entitled So long as the Indian can be subsisted by rations and the chase he will not labor so long as he refuses to labor he cannot take the first step in civilization The call to labor must come to him, not through memorials or treaties, councils or presents, but through his necessities The Indian who cannot be taught the first great lesson the lesson of labor, has no further chance in the struggle for life The encroachments of civilization have made it impossible for him to subsist without work and unfortunately experience proves that most will perish rather than learn the lessons of toil Their constitutional disrelish for labor is not to be overcome in a single generation The old policy of moving them away to new localities as settlements pressed upon them is now wholly at an end There remain no unoccupied places to which they can be removed and now they must struggle with the hard problems of existence like the rest of us The proud son of nature who has heretofore disdained labor and thrown upon his squaw such drudgery as his camp and his family required cannot escape the primitive curse any longer and live He must bend his back to the burden galling as it may be to his slothful nature To live in the old way is rapidly becoming an impossibility for him The question is settling itself Blunders of government cannot postpone it many years longer Every time he goes to war he pushes the question toward its last solution with an accelerated force and speed The alternative is work or die

In a communication to the Standard urging the construction of railroads by the state at the portages of the Columbia river Mr S Pennoyer of Portland suggests what seems to him a feasible way of avoiding the prohibitions of the constitution against incurring indebtedness He suggests in substance that the legislature shall resolve to build the roads and then levy a tax for the purpose for two consecutive years, so that by the time the work shall be completed there would be money to pay for it This is not a logical argument for those who stickle for strict construction of the constitution We should suppose that the obligation which it is suggested that the state assume in its undertaking to build the roads and in its contract with the builders therefor, would be none the less a debt in consequence of its not being payable for one and two years Should an act be passed pledging the state to build the roads and to levy a tax to pay the expense, we should like to see the course of reasoning which would prove that this act itself was not creating a debt or liability directly in conflict with section seven article eleven of the constitution of Oregon The argument that because the debt would probably be paid in two years therefore it would be no debt will hardly pass the judicial tribunals

Will the bottom never be reached of that Louisiana business? It is a very labyrinth of intrigue a dark mine with more chambers and passages and ramifications and secret ways than any investigation no matter how thorough or prolonged, could ever let light into Here now is a Washington special to the Chicago Times asserting that the $6 000 bill for payment of the McVeigh commission which congress refused to allow has been paid by one C T Howard a member of the firm which owns the Louisiana state lottery Howard, it is said is a Democrat a supporter of the Nicholls government and a manager of politics in the pelican state It is also asserted that the Louisiana lottery which pays a heavy tax to the state, furnished money to corrupt the Packard legislature, and the amount is stated by rumor at $40 000 Whether there be anything in these charges or not, it is apparent from a great variety of circumstances that the managers for the administration were very willing to let the Democrats have the government of Louisiana for the sake of peace, Hayes and office while the Nicholls party in Louisiana were quite reconciled to the idea of Hayes for president, provided they could get full possession of the government of their state.

Ex Gov Hendricks of Indiana, recently delivered an address before the literary societies of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, in which he made a loud bid for southern support for the presidency His subject was ' Political Right of Revolution in the People The real character of a revolution he declared, was dependent on its result If it was successful the world regarded it as entirely right. And of course the inference was that as an abstract principle it was quite as right even if it didn t succeed and thus the southern confederacy was justified Of course the rebellion of 1776 was alluded to, when Washington and his associates were denounced as rebels and traitors and of course Mr Hendricks' auditors were expected to advert at once their minds to Jefferson Davis, Gen Lee and their compeers in the south as parallels This address has been published widely throughout the south, and Mr Hendricks expects it to bear fruit in the next national convention of his party

People of Portland are both willing and anxious to do something for their fellow citizens who were sufferers by the Indian raid There is one thing Portland can do Great numbers of people, obliged to flee from their homes, are congregated at Pendleton and other places and many of them are in actual want They were obliged to leave everything behind them, and are in need of means of subsistence Portland can do much for their relief Provisions can be sent An organized effort in this behalf would be very proper and timely

We print a letter from Klamath which ridicules and, it appears very deservedly the call on the governor for volunteers, telegraphed some days ago from that section On one account it would have been satisfactory to see the troops called out Our friend Brooks (Quincy A) would make a capital quartermaster or commissary and we have confidence that even as a sutler he would display no merely common talents

CITY.

MR. COGGAN'S REMAINS.—As will be observed by the dispatches received yesterday from Umatilla the remains of the late Coggan, who was killed several days ago by the Indians have been found When recovered the body was in such a condition that it had to be buried at once Gov Chadwick sent a telegram yesterday to Mrs Coggan apprising her of the recovery and burial of her husband's remains, and asking the bereaved lady what further disposition of the body was necessary Yesterday morning two men left here for Umatilla with a casket being authorized by Mrs Coggan to disinter the remains place them in the casket and forward to this city for final interment In a few days the body is expected to arrive at Portland.

THE STABBING AFFAIR.—Henry Myers the person who was stabbed Sunday on the train between New Era Park and Oregon city is said to be in a precarious condition The stabbing was not done by George LaRocque as was at first reported but by a young man named Dan Smith Both the LaRocque boys George and Alphonso and two others Dolan and Miller, are all implicated with Smith in the crime and are under arrest The conduct of a number of young men from Oregon City while on the grounds was shameless and disgraceful in the extreme Should the injuries received by Myers result fatally these young men now under arrest will have a serious charge to answer.

ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT.—Constable Sprague arrested a Frenchman named Jos Bisnette who lives at St. Johns, below this city yesterday afternoon, on a charge of assault The alleged assault was committed on the person of a little girl about 11 years of age The little girl testified that Bisnette enticed her in to his room and then attempted to forcibly lock her in a closet at the same time attempting indecent liberties The case was tried before Justice Bybee, who held that Bisnette was guilty of an assault and imposed a fine of $50. Bisnette, we understand, has filed a notice of appeal

POCKET MAPS.—We are in receipt of a very neat pocket map of Oregon and Washington territory drawn and compiled by Mr R A Habersham and published by J K Gill & Co of this city. This same firm has pocket maps from the same plate with colored counties and townships, public roads railroads, etc, accurately delineated to date of June 1st, 1878, also a new map of Oregon in pocket form and, likewise of Washington territory These maps are very accurate and are convenient and valuable.

NARROW ESCAPE.—A horse belonging to Mr. J. Robinson, of East Portland narrowly escaped drowning yesterday afternoon The animal, which was attached to a buggy was driven into the river at the foot of L street, in East Portland, to get a drink By some means the horse became entangled in the ferry cable and came near getting beyond its depth. However the animal was got out with great exertions. It was a very close call.

FIRE ALARM.—At one o'clock this morning an alarm was struck from box 13 and on looking out a great blaze indicated a fire at the extreme south end of Second street The engines soon returned, as it was beyond the reach of water. A returning fireman reported it as Henry Weber's house

The play of "Joshua Whitby" with Mr. E. G. Marsh, as "Uncle Josh," supported by the full strength of the company, will constitute the principal attraction of the opening. There are sixteen members of the new company, all of whom are said to be first class. Mr Marsh, a gentleman who has had much experience in the profession, has the management of the company A lot of new and beautiful scenery, we are informed, is being brought up on this steamer which was painted by Mr W C Porter who has long been employed as scenic artist at the California Theater Performances will be given Thursday Friday and Saturday evenings A matinee will also be given Saturday afternoon.

OPEN TEMPERANCE MEETING

The meeting last Saturday evening at the rooms of the Y M C Association was of more than ordinary interest

Judge Caples presided, in his usual felicitous and efficient manner He is justly entitled to the gratitude of all the friends of law and order and sobriety nor can it be withheld by any who know, from observation the labor he is performing Mr Heroy assisted by Miss M Baker, who so acceptably presides at the organ conducts the singing and materially adds to the interest of the services

Chaplain Stubbs was called to offer the opening prayer An address by Mr H M Clinton was chaste sententious crisp a forcible presentation of the crime of degrading humanity especially by the needless indulgence in the sale and use of alcoholic beverages The audience listened with almost breathless attention while some portions of a recitation entitled "Pledged with Wine" were being rendered The performance was highly creditable

Two young candidates for usefulness in the temperance reform made their debut at this meeting and Miss Clara Rennick and Miss Laura Watkins bid fair to become favorites with the temperance public The former gave a recitation entitled "The Drunkard's Wife" So far as the volume of her very pleasant voice would permit she enunciated with good emphasis, inflection and distinctness The mellowness and pathos of her tones give promise of excellence if her voice is not sacrificed by the faulty demands of teachers, or over ambitious admirers At the close of her recitation Miss Rennick and Miss Watkins sang "All is not gold that glitters" which commanded the applause of the audience

These meetings are accomplishing a good work and in a quiet way are cultivating a wholesome temperance sentiment, and it does seem that every encouragement should be extended to the president and those who are sustaining these meetings—certainly sufficient funds should be easily furnished to meet the limited expenses of hall rent, etc, without any friction

CRICKET MATCH

On Saturday afternoon the Portland Cricket Club met at their grounds in South Portland to determine as to whether the married men or bachelors were the best cricketers As was to be expected the bachelors were largely in the ascendant as to numerical strength but the result of the contest demonstrated the married men had most muscle and science winning handsomely with only five of their number at the bat We must mention that the best batters of the single side were disposed of for very few runs owing to the excellent bowling of Mr Andrews this gentleman and Mr Kinross winning the game for the married side by their handsome batting Not satisfied with their defeat the bachelors will attempt to retrieve their fortunes next Saturday afternoon on the grounds at 4 o clock precisely We append the score

PRIVATE JAMES H. WATSON

VANCOUVER ARSENAL July 11 1878

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The account of the drowning of Private James H Watson ordnance department U S A, at the Upper Cascades as published in the papers was not correct in several particulars Private Watson was not an old man, as stated but of about 38 years of age Neither was he in the lead leaving the cars, as five or six had left before him and only for timely warning it is very likely others would have met the same fate The manner in which he lost his life was as follows He stepped off the front platform of the rear car to what he in the darkness supposed was a plank platform over the water The car from which the accident occurred had not been drawn near enough so as to connect the car with the wharf boat Mr Watson held a captain's commission in a cavalry regiment during the war and was afterward commissioned a second lieutenant in the 4th U S Cavalry in which regiment he served until 1871 when he went into business in civil life but meeting with misfortune and having a liking for the military service he enlisted in the 1st U S Cavalry and was discharged a first sergeant in 1877 He soon after enlisted in the ordnance department at Vancouver Arsenal Mr James H Watson was a well educated refined and gentlemanly soldier and his loss is most deeply felt by his many friends, both civil and military

HAT SCARE IN SOUTHERN OREGON

THE SCOUT—FROM FORT KLAMATH TO LAKE IEW—REPORT FROM WARNER VALLEY—THAT ANICKY CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS—PEACE SE ENELY REIGNS

FORT KLAMATH, July 11 1878
THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

n response to various and blood curdling orts from Lakeview and the valleys and lements in its immediate vicinity Major kson commanding the military post at rt Klamath sent Captain Adams and 24 n belonging to B company 1st Cavalry a scout in search of hostile Indians on the h of June Previous to that date for weeks rcely a day elapsed but couriers arrived at post bringing news of murder arson pe and nearly all the other crimes in the ndar from the unhappy vales of Warner Lake Drew and Round Grove Even Yainax the veracious messengers said they re in hourly fears of being scalped I was the ranks of the forlorn hope sent to count the authors of the above dire calamities d as a healthy measure had my head aved previous to our departure there being tradition current in the east that the red ns scalped no bald headed captives

We were accompanied by one eyed Allen Klamath Indian as guide With a vigor s atmosphere around us neighing steeds der us and trembling hearts within us we ok our departure taking a last sad look at e old post the familiar trees and fond com des, knowing from the terrific reports re ived that ours was a mission of death me of the boys grumbled lustily because were not fortified with a chaplain but I ung very nearly one volunteered to act as ich and was accepted as the next best thing e reached the Klamath agency six miles stant without having our scalps desecrated d consequently we began to breathe freer r J. H Roork, the Indian agent, joined r party at the agency and accompanied us Brown s ranch some 60 miles distant The st night out we camped at a locality known the "Big Springs" near Sprague river and range as it may seem none of us were lled, wounded, missing or disturbed. Not en an Indian did we see save a venerable uaw, who hobbled her way into camp in e morning in search of a free breakfast hich she got as a measure of conciliation e marched to Yainax next day, and to our tense surprise found the denizens thereof a state of calmness pursuing the even nor of their ways in peace A number of dians had congregated there in anticipation our arrival and were as innocent looking erubs as ever lifted a scalp or cut a throat ther of whom would make forty attempts stand on his head for a solitary hard ck." Here we learned that the hostiles ere assembled in force in Sprague river val y near Geerhardt's ranch and that the set ers were fleeing from there in every direc on. Being accustomed to such dire news e bore it with resignation and ate and slept undly We left Yainax, Sunday morning e 30th, and early in the afternoon arrived close proximity to Geerhardt's, where we waited the onset of the Indians. But what n be the matter? There are no Indians in e vicinity nor does Myneer Geerhardt know f any Here we were met by Blow, chief of e Klamath tribe Dave Hill, 1st sub chief, llan David, 2d sub chief Schonchin chief f the Modocs, Sachem John, boss of the Pitt vers, and various other copper colored dig itaries

In the evening the above named warriors nd statesmen, with J H Roork of the Klamath agency, his brother, the sub agent t Yainax, and Captain Adams assembled round the council fire and had an extensive ow wow, that lasted many hours The hief attraction there was a Snake deserter who told, through the assistance of various nterpreters, that he was a good Indian liked he white men, and did not want to go to ar with them, that he was forced into the ight and took part in the engagement with Bernard, that his "conscience quickened" nd he embraced an early opportunity to "skin out," and was there with a whole skin o tell the above story How many there were present that believed him I am unable o say, but certain it is I did not believe a ingle word that escaped his lips He was he most villainous looking scoundrel that it was ever my ill-fortune to see and verily do believe that were all the Indians west of he Mississippi of his calibre, no matter what heir wrongs may be or how bloodthirsty heir nature, the whites would be safe in heir midst Though I would have no hesitation in believing him guilty of any offense, et he is like a coyote,—will always remain t a safe distance, being afraid to approach nearer his prey.

No matter on what trivial pretense the Indians rebel against their white brethren a brave man can have no feeling but that of contempt and scorn for the cowardly whelp that would betray and fight against his own race, perhaps his father, brothers and children

At the terminus of his story, which was no doubt taken by Captain Adams with a good deal of salt, nearly all the chiefs present delivered long speeches in which they proclaimed themselves openly and unhesitating y the friends and allies of the whites, ready and willing to take up arms in defense of them if circumstances so warranted and I have no doubt but they spoke their minds truly

Next day we reached Drew's valley and found nothing more hostile or savage than crickets, and they were in abundance Were I to write the details of all the reports and " facts " that were poured into our ears until we reached Lake View, it would cover an entire page of THE OREGONIAN. In every valley we reached we were informed that hostile Indians were in force in the next valley, all of which we learned was false on arriving there

Well, at last we reached Lakeview, the county seat of Lake county, and found the inhabitants in a state of terrible alarm lest the Indians, "armed to the teeth," and "400 strong encamped at Warner valley," should make a raid on the town The leading citizens of the town ' pledged us their words that the Indians were there at first they had seen them but upon being cross examined they admitted they had not seen them themselves, but there were several parties in town who had We sought out those "several parties, who were willing to swear they had seen Indians, but by a cross examination and a judicious use of whisky, it eked out slowly that they had not seen them themselves but Jones had, and straightway they took me to the awful presence of Jones That pompous individual had but recently driven his herd from Warner valley, and, with his own eyes ' saw Indians.

At last! at last! I thought we we have found the "Golden Fleece," Jones is a leading citizen, a prominent member of the community I am certain of that because he told me so himself Jones said that he saw a number of hostile Indians in Warner valley himself, that they were blood thirsty damned scoundrels and had burned down his house That seemed conclusive, and we began to prepare for a brush with the red skins in Warner valley but the citizens of Lakeview had sent out some four or five fool hardy young men as scouts to see what the ' Injuns were doing at Warner They returned on the evening of the 2d of July, and, alas, for the veracity of Mr Jones, "nary" an Indian could they see, and Mr Jones' house was still water proof, not being in the least disturbed or harmed since the day he left it Neither had any other house in the valley or any property of any kind been touched and further still there was not a solitary Indian seen in the valley, nor had they been there Thus was that bottle of smoke exploded and we returned home to be again astonished on glancing at the papers to find a dispatch from the leading citizens of Linkville to the chief magistrate of Oregon asking for assistance to protect them from the Klamath Indians At first we thought the dispatch was a maggot o' diseased brains, but on further contemplation the only logical conclusion I can reach is that it was the work of some practical joker, who used the names of good old Uncle George Nourse or others to get up a scare in the more settled portions of the state Seriously speaking I think that Indian Agent Roork ought to send a score or more of Klamaths to Linkville to garrison the town and quiet the fears of denizens To us that know the circumstances and the situation all round us, the Linkville dispatch seemed ludicrous in the extreme, To conclude, the Klamath Indians are as safe as the same number of white men They have no cause to break out nor have they any idea of so doing They are well off cultivate the land and raise in numbers, cattle and horses They are hard working and industrious as well civilized as some whites most of them can speak English fluently and some of them can read and write Nearly all their children attend school and Mr Nickerson their painstaking teacher informs me that they are bright and quick to learn a [illegible] to do so Lastly they have over them as U S agent in the person of Mr Roork an honest sensible man who understands their wants and tries to ameliorate their condition to ladies only for years and is perfectly familiar with all female complaints and understands their delicate and refined organization, as well as the proper remedies which should be used to allay their suffering and restore them to perfect health

over most physicians—he can tell the patients disease the moment he comes in contact with them without any aid from the individual. This accounts in part for his great professional success

All surgical operations can be performed by his skillful hand, and the patient need not fear the result.

will send to those living at a distance and who can not well visit his office a list of Printed Questions and by the answers when filled out he can tell the disease as well as the proper treatment almost as well as seeing the patient personally and will forward the proper medicines or instruments to any part of the country with full instructions and advice Each letter requiring advice or list of questions must contain two postage stamps

Everything strictly confidential and honorable

has studied in the best Medical Schools in Europe and three years in the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia as more than one of the Medical men of the Medical Faculty in this State can testify

CAUTION.

Persons coming to Portland requiring medical treatment of the proper kind who desire to consult with me will please beware of persons who may try to coax them away to other so called Doctors through pretended friendship for the patients Look out for them they are knaves prompted by selfish motives and what they can make Be sure and ask for DR PAUL M BRENAN the Medical Lecturer and read his sign on his door
